

THE POLITICAL FUTURE OF THE EUROPEAN UNION

Friday 7 October – Conservatoire national des Arts et Métiers, 292 Rue Saint-Martin, 75003 Paris

The Jacques Delors Institute is celebrating the 20th anniversary of its creation under the name “Notre Europe”. The Institute is using this opportunity to debate twenty years of analyses and propositions aimed at European decision-makers as well as a wider public at the service of the European project, as well as to help mold the Europe of both today and tomorrow.

The European Union and its Member States are facing a multi-faceted crisis whose outcome will determine the future of the European project. After the British referendum, what kind of Europe do we want? Where should the EU's borders lie? What will the European identity be in a globalised world? How can we assure the collective security of Europeans? What European strategy for economic and social matters?

Such questions will be answered by Jean-Claude Juncker and Manuel Valls during a public conference broadcast live on our websites and social networks. Partnerships with the European media and civil society organisations from several EU countries will allow for even greater participation from web users in this interactive debate involving the President of the European Commission and the French Prime Minister.
