

Extract from:

Elena Muñoz Gálvez, “European Development Aid: How to be more effective without spending more?”, Policy Paper n° 57, Notre Europe, July 2012.

Table of contents

Introduction	p. 1
1. Overview of the European development policy	p. 3
1.1. Development policy in Europe: a shared competence	p. 3
1.2. The diversity of Member States' development policies	p. 5
1.3. Development aid spending: the EU as the first global donor	p. 6
1.3.1. Aid spending by Member States	p. 7
1.3.2. Aid spending by the European institutions	p. 9
1.4. EU architecture for financing development	p. 11
1.4.1. EU budget	p. 11
1.4.2. European Development Fund (EDF)	p. 13
1.4.3. European Investment Bank (EIB)	p. 13
1.4.4. EU loan and grant blending facilities	p. 14
2. Improving EU spending on development: main issues at debate	p. 17
2.1. Budgetisation of the European Development Fund	p. 17
2.2. Rethinking assistance towards MICs and emerging economies	p. 19
2.3. Innovative financing mechanisms for development: blending grants and loans	p. 21
2.4. Beyond financing: coordination and coherence	p. 23
2.4.1. Improving donors' coordination	p. 23
2.4.2. Promoting coherence	p. 25

3. Increasing efficiency of EU development spending current proposals and prospects for the future	p. 27
3.1. The Commission's proposal on development financing for 2014-2020	p. 27
3.1.1. Development Cooperation Instrument (DCI)	p. 29
3.1.2. Partnership Instrument	p. 30
3.1.3. European Neighbourhood Instrument (ENI)	p. 30
3.1.4. European Development Fund (EDF)	p. 30
3.2. Maintaining the amounts for EU development spending	p. 31
3.3. Including the European Development Fund into the EU budget?	p. 33
3.4. Prospects for differentiated partnerships	p. 34
3.5. Towards an EU platform of blending mechanisms	p. 35
3.6. Improving coordination and coherence	p. 37
3.6.1. Donors' coordination	p. 37
3.6.2. Policy Coherence for Development	p. 39
Conclusion	p. 41
Abbreviations	p. 43
Bibliography	p. 45
Selected publications by Notre Europe	p. 51