

ENERGY SOLIDARITY IN EUROPE: FROM INDEPENDENCE TO INTERDEPENDENCE

TABLE OF CONTENTS

Extract from:
Sami Andoura,
"Energy solidarity in Europe:
from independence to interdependence",
Studies & Reports No. 99,
Notre Europe – Jacques Delors Institute, July 2013.

FOREWORD	6
EXECUTIVE SUMMARY	9
INTRODUCTION WHAT SHOULD BE INCLUDED IN THE EUROPEAN ENERGY SOLIDARITY CLAUSE?
Legal and political innovation in energy solidarity in Europe	18
An upsurge of the primacy of national energy independence and unilateralism	19
Differences in national positions within the EU	20
Energy solidarity in review	20
1. The emergence of energy solidarity in Europe: from Schuman to Lisbon	22
1.1. From the beginning: European Coal and Steel Community (ECSC)	22
1.2. National sovereignty and European energy governance: troublesome ties	23
1.3. The liberalisation and integration process: cornerstone of European energy policy	25
1.4. The new European energy policy: solidarity in the energy/climate package	26
1.5. The energy solidarity clause: an innovative addition to the Treaty of Lisbon	29
1.6. Differences in the positions: member states, European institutions, industrial operators and consumers	31

ENERGY SOLIDARITY IN EUROPE: FROM INDEPENDENCE TO INTERDEPENDENCE

2.	Solidarity in times of crisis: internal security of supply	34
	2.1. Crises in Russian gas supplies: a triggering event	34
	2.2. Preventing and managing gas supply crises: de facto and legally binding solidarity	38
	2.3. Solidarity and the internal market: interconnection infrastructures	40
	2.3.1. Integration of energy markets as a major vehicle of solidarity	40
	2.3.2. Missing energy corridors and infrastructures	41
	2.4. Security of electricity supply: the weak link	46
	2.5. External contracts and compliance with the acquis communautaire : the importance of coherence	50
3.	Solidarity outside EU borders: diversification and partnerships	52
	3.1. Uncertain global and European energy contexts	52
	3.2. Gas in the energy mixes in Europe: transition(s) and uncertainty	54
	3.3. Supply sources diversification: a European strategy	59
	3.4. Intergovernmental agreements transparency: mutual confidence	64
	3.5. Energy partnerships: strategic approach and framework agreements	65
	3.6. Solidarity with EU neighbouring countries: concrete co-development energy projects	68
	3.7. Gas supply capacities: a collective approach	69
4	Solidarity, the energy transition and optimising resources within the EU	72
	4.1. Solidarity in national choices: ensuring complementarity	72

ENERGY SOLIDARITY IN EUROPE: FROM INDEPENDENCE TO INTERDEPENDENCE

4.2. Example of a European solidarity project: offshore wind farms in the North Sea	74
5. Financial solidarity and investment in projects of European interest	7 9
5.1. Financing network infrastructure: the rise of European instruments	80
5.2. Structural funds in the area of energy: solidarity between regions	82
6. Solidarity to ensure energy access for all and the fight against energy poverty	84
6.1. Energy poverty: a growing and unregulated problem in Europe	84
6.2. Need for action: a new political impetus	85
CONCLUSION TOWARDS A EUROPEAN ENERGY COMMUNITY BASED ON COMPETITION, COOPERATION AND SOLIDARITY	87
Gradual but real increase in energy solidarity in Europe	87
Missing elements of EU energy solidarity within the EU	88
Reflections to continue	91
Competition, cooperation and solidarity	92
LIST OF BOXES, GRAPHS AND TABLES	95
REFERENCES	97
ON THE SAME THEMES	105
AUTHOR	107

The author would like to warmly thank the following persons for their useful comments and suggestions: Yves Bertoncini, Anthony Dawes, Jacques Delors, Michel Derdevet, Daniel Dobbeni, Claude Mandil, Denis Simonneau, Olivier Silla, and Jean-Arnold Vinois.